

Open Source Developers' Conference

The Open Source Developers' Conference 2008 is a conference run by open source developers, for developers and business people. It covers numerous programming languages across a range of operating systems, and related topics such as business processes, licensing, and strategy. Talks vary from introductory pieces through to the deeply technical.

The fifth annual conference will be in Sydney, Australia from Tuesday 2nd December through Friday 5th of December 2008. It will be held at the SMC conference venue located in the Sydney CBD.

We have an exciting selection of presenters and keynote speakers confirmed for this year, including:

- * Larry Wall, the creator of Perl
- * Chris DiBona, Open Source Programs Manager for Google
- * Andrew Tridgell, Founder, Samba Team
- * Anthony Baxter, Python Release Manager
- * Pia Waugh, Consultant, Waugh Partners

Earlybird registration opens 1st of October 2008. For more information, please visit: <http://www.osdc.com.au/>

OSDC 2008

Sydney, Australia

2 - 5 December 2008

<http://www.osdc.com.au/>